

Solution Brief:

Telecom Expense Management

Mobile devices are key to digital transformation within organizations as they drive better communication, easy collaboration, and the digitization of workflows. It means companies often have solutions that leverage smartphones, tablets, wearables, and IoT—in addition to traditional wireline tools like phones and fax machines. All those devices come with ongoing costs that must be managed. It's a complex task, and without some way to see your entire environment, you're struggling with a confusing puzzle where expenses quickly add up.

Get Control of Your Spending

When you partner with Stratix, you get expert telecom expense analysts who continuously look at your environment for ways to save. Our software and services give you holistic visibility and control over your expenses, including carrier contracts, devices, and more.

- Centralized invoice processing to simplify departmental allocation and reconciliation, consolidate silos of data, and effectively manage your mobile technology expenses from one place
- Billing analysis across all carriers and suppliers to ensure accuracy and identify any discrepancies or overcharges
- Usage trend analysis so you know who spends the most, who spends the least, and cycles of usage for better strategic spending
- Managing relationships with telecom service providers, including resolving disputes, coordinating service changes, and ensuring compliance with contracts to save you time and reduce costs
- Monthly business analysis and optimization recommendations
- Easy to read, actionable reporting on key cost control targets (i.e. zero-use lines, international usage, data, and more)
- Dedicated subject matter experts that stay up-to-date on carrier offerings, guaranteeing you the most beneficial plans for your environment
