

Solution Brief:

Stratix Wireless Failover

Organizations today are so dependent on data connectivity that everything grinds to a halt without it. From offices and retail stores to workers in the field, if a data connection is lost, associates can't do their jobs, and stores can't process credit card transactions. There can even be significant safety concerns when a facility like a hospital can't access patient records and other information.

Cellular Redundancy Keeps You Connected

Stratix partners with Advantix on a cellular network redundancy solution that switches networks to a backup if connectivity is lost. It works with wired and wireless connections and will roll over to a different carrier if a network goes down using SmartSIM technology. It's an insurance policy for connectivity that prevents costly downtime.

- Connects to a dozen leading carriers in North America, including AT&T, T-Mobile, and Verizon
- One platform eliminates the hassle of dealing with multiple carriers with different platforms, portals, and support teams
- Single invoice
- Lower costs through pre-negotiated rate plans
- 24x7 industry-leading technical support
- Data analytics which show when, and how many times, a SIM switches between carriers

Add Telecom Expense Management

Whether it's SmartSIM or traditional wireline and wireless services, keeping track of everything and getting the most out of your spending is very challenging for even the most experienced IT and financial teams.

Stratix telecom expense management services give you comprehensive visibility and control. Our analysts will study what you're paying for, how much you're actually paying, and where you can reduce spend. Then, you can accurately predict annual expenditures and develop the most efficient organization-wide budget solution possible.
